Murrayshall House: modern luxury in a historic setting

[Body copy]

Little has changed in the 343 years that Murrayshall House has stood in its beautiful 350-acre Perthshire estate. The wild roe deer and hare still roam the grounds, and the kestrels still hover in the skies above.

Handed down through a succession of aristocratic and high profile owners since first built in 1664, including Lords, Viscounts and leading businessmen, the house is as stylish, secluded and romantic as it's always been.

Yet, while owners have come and gone, fading into the fascinating patchwork of Murrayshall's history, the house itself remains. It stands as if testament to the refinement of a bygone age, a time when sitting down for dinner was an occasion to savour - an era when countryside leisure was a practiced social art, and never something to be hurried.

We've not forgotten life's simple pleasures at the Murrayshall House Hotel. Family owned and run, we've succeeded in capturing the essence of this unique history to create a world of our own. This is a special place where great service combines with fun, relaxation and fine food. A hotel where you can play golf on our two professional courses, enjoy a romantic weekend, hold a productive conference or even get married.

A magical combination of beautiful rural isolation and traditional comfort, interlaced with modern accessibility and up to date facilities, the Murrayshall House Hotel really does have it all.

As with former owners who appreciate the history behind its impressive architecture and scenic estate, we feel that Murrayshall House Hotel is a genuinely unique place to spend some time. We'd like to invite you to come and stay with us, so we can work hard on ensuring you agree.

The history of Murrayshall Estate

[Body copy]

The original Murrayshall House was built in 1664 by Sir Andrew Murray; son of the First Lord of Balvaird, and brother of David Murray, the Second Lord of Balvaird and Fourth Viscount of Stormont. The direct descendants of this family are the Earls of Mansfield, who occupy Scone Palace to this day.

Sir Andrew's granddaughter, Janet Murray, went on to marry Patrick Graham, the great uncle of Thomas Graham – who later became Lord Lynedoch. Thus, the Murrays and then the Graham Murrays occupied the house for some 260 years.

The house was modernised in the 18th Century, and again in 1864. Yet, tragedy struck in 1925 when a major fire killed a young heir to the Murrayshall estate, effectively ending the Murray family's connection with this unique house and its land.

Murrayshall House then entered a happier time in its history, when it was sold on to Francis Norrie-Millar in 1927. Then Managing Director of insurance giant General Accident, Norrie-Millar proved to be the company's leading light in its early days, and quickly turned the fortunes of Murrayshall House too.

Following the death of his son, Sir Stanley Norrie-Millar, Francis sold the estate to a group of local businessmen in 1973. These discerning entrepreneurs, fully aware of its esteemed history, then established Murrayshall as the top quality country house hotel that it remains today.

Famous owners of Murrayshall House: Francis Norrie-Millar

[Body copy]

When the Graham Murrays sold Murrayshall House and its 350-acre grounds in 1927, the estate passed into the ownership of Francis Norrie-Millar, the astute and hardworking local businessman.

Born in Stoke Newington, Norrie-Millar's Scottish mother gave him the first part of his distinctive hyphenated surname, while his father Henry proved the biggest influence on Francis' choice of career.

Head of the statistical department with Her Majesty's Customs, Henry instilled a keen understanding of figures into young Francis, who went on to work in insurance and rose to be a leading light in Perth-based insurance giant General Accident.

Francis worked for a total of four insurance companies before joining General Accident in February 1887, aged 27. His first role was as secretary on £300 a year. At this time the firm had just 1000 policies under management, a premium income of £2833 and a first year profit of just £585. The company was ripe for growth and this is how Francis made his name.

Norrie-Millar was an energetic and creative entrepreneur, and his hard work and vision helped to grow General Accident's yearly income to £500,000 by 1906. He also succeeded in swelling the staff to 125 in the head office, and installed 12,000 agents worldwide.

Despite creating a truly global business before the concept really existed, Norrie-Millar was determined to keep General Accident's headquarters in Perth. He achieved this throughout his lifetime and beyond, until the company merged with Commercial Union in 1998 and was subsequently taken over by Aviva.

Famous owners of Murrayshall House: Lord Lynedoch

[Body copy]

Perhaps the most famous member of the Graham Murray dynasty to be connected with Murrayshall House is Thomas Graham, who became Lord Lynedoch. A memorial to this enigmatic war hero was erected on the estate in 1850, where you can still see it today.

A member of an aristocratic Scottish landowning family, Graham inherited estates across Perthshire and went on to manage them successfully. He then married the famous beauty Anne Cathcart (immortalised in paint by Gainsborough), and enjoyed a happy life as the archetypal country gentleman.

However, when his wife died when he was just 43, Graham joined the army, and was quick to prove himself and climb the ranks. His finest hour was during the Battle of Barossa during the Peninsular War on 5th March 1811, when he commanded British, Portuguese and Spanish forces against the French at Cadiz in Southern Spain. His was hailed a hero after winning the battle, despite scant support from the Spanish.

That same year, Graham was made second in command to the Duke of Wellington, and went on to fight in the Netherlands, with less success. Despite this, he was frequently praised by the British Parliament for his bravery, one commentator saying, "Never was there a loftier spirit in a braver heart.'

Lord Lynedoch was made a baronet in 1814 and served in the army until he was 70. He went on to enjoy an active and lively old age, and died in 1843 aged 93. His heroics on the battlefields of Spain became the stuff of legend in later years, and Walter Scott eulogized these exploits in his poem, 'The Vision of Don Roderick.'

"Nor be his praise o'erpast who strove to hide
Beneath the warrior's vest affection's wound,
Whose wish Heaven for his country's weal denied;
Danger and fate, he sought, but glory found."

"From clime to clime, wher'e'r war's trumpets sound,
The wanderer went; yet, Caledonia, still
Thine was his thought in march and tented ground;
He dreamed mid Alpine cliffs of Athole's hill,
And heard in Ebro's roar his Lynedoch's lovely rill.
"O hero of a race renowned of old,
Whose war-cry oft has waked the battle swell!"

Murrayshall Golf Course: Designed by Hamilton J Stutt

[Body copy]

The Murrayshall Championship Golf Course is renowned for the skill of its design and the sympathetic and clever way it seamlessly blends with the natural features of the estate.

Rather than appearing to be ‘dropped’ into the 350-acres of heath, park and woodland, the course seems to grow naturally from the landscape. This is all testament to the skill of its designer, Hamilton J. Stutt, the grandson of the great James Braid’s chief foreman.

A graduate of St. Andrews University, for whom he played both golf and tennis, Hamilton Stutt was a golf course architect for over fifty years. He learnt his trade from well-respected golf course designers Mackenzie Ross and John Morrison.

Stutt’s golf course designs place great emphasis on making the best of existing natural features, and this is certainly the case at Murrayshall House. This approach not only preserves the beauty of the landscape, but also reduces construction costs.

Throughout his career, Stutt was involved with over 120 new golf course builds and improvement projects. These range from designs in the UK, Ireland, France and Germany, and also in Spain, Scandinavia and the Middle East. Notable achievements include work on the famous Turnberry Golf Course with Mackenzie Ross, plus involvement in the St. Mellion Old Course, Meon Valley and Woodbury Park.

A member of the Royal and Ancient and President of Parkstone, his local club, Stutt was on the Board of the Sports Turf Research Institute for many years. He was also a National President of the British Golf Greenkeepers’ Association.

Stutt is also one of the three founders and a past President of the British Institute, and in 1996 was awarded their first Silver Medal for “outstanding services to golf architecture and golf.”

Disabled facilities at Murrayshall House Hotel

[Body copy]

Despite being set inside an historic old building, Murrayshall House Hotel has taken care to ensure that disabled guests are in no way inconvenienced by the layout of the hotel.

Many older hotel buildings are non-sympathetic to the needs of not only disabled guests, but also to the everyday workings of a modern hotel – but we have worked hard to overcome this at Murrayshall House without compromising the traditional layout.

Disabled customers will find wheelchair ramps where needed, lifts to all floors, and specially equipped bathroom and dining facilities – all designed to ensure your stay is as comfortable as possible.

You will also find that the friendly staff at Murrayshall House Hotel are extremely professional and discreet when serving disabled guests, and you can rest assured that we will always go out of our way so that you never have to.

Standard Rooms: anything but...

[Body Copy]

Set in the sumptuous elegance of the original manor house, our Standard Rooms are characterised by their exquisite charm and comfort.

Because all eight Standard Rooms are individually decorated, each has its own unique character and appeal, making you feel less that you're in a hotel and more that you're enjoying a break in a country house. The rooms are very spacious, light and airy, reflective of the acres of fresh air at your fingertips.

Every Standard Room is en suite, featuring a large bathroom with traditional fittings in keeping with the room's classic, rural decor. The wooden panelling offers a homely, country feel, while the large windows and high ceilings remind you of the grandeur of your surroundings. Most Standard Rooms also have superb views of our fabulous golf courses.

All rooms come with free WiFi broadband, TV, telephone, tea and coffee, ironing board and trouser press, with the added touch of mineral water and shortbread for you to enjoy.

Luxury, quality and unique Scottish style, our Standard Rooms at the Murrayshall Hotel offer you the complete package.

Superior Rooms: relax in luxury

[Body Copy]

Our Superior Rooms are found in the original Murrayshall Manor House, and offer the same rustic character of the standard room but with extra space.

Having more room means you benefit from a bigger bed and a spacious lounge area with sofa and chairs. The Superior Rooms also boast the same high ceilings and huge windows you would expect from a traditional seventeenth century manor house.

Cast ordinary notions of hotel rooms aside; the Superior Rooms, all with large en suite bathrooms and some with vestibules, give you spectacular views of the surrounding countryside and Grampian mountains. Each is individually decorated, adorned with classic traditional furniture and luxurious, brightly coloured carpeting. Every suite in the manor house also offers a gun cupboard and fishing rod storage.

All rooms come with free WiFi broadband, colour television, tea and coffee, telephone, ironing board and trouser press. We also provide complementary Scottish mineral water and shortbread for a homely welcome.

Master Suite: our biggest and best

[Body Copy]

The Master Suite is the most well appointed and spacious in the Murrayshall House Hotel, and offers some of the best views in the whole of Scotland. Mullioned windows overlook the 18th hole of the Championship Golf Course, and the Strathmore Valley and Grampian mountains beyond.

With a main room measuring 20 feet square, the suite is the grandest of those in the original manor house, with a large lounge area and very spacious bathroom. The whole suite is decked out in the traditional country style of the seventeenth century Murrayshall House.

The high ceilings and vast windows make this a light, airy room, and the exquisite fabrics used on the furniture and bedclothes add to its elegance. Unsurprisingly, this room is very often used as a honeymoon suite.

All rooms come with free WiFi broadband, TV, telephone, tea and coffee making facilities, ironing board and trouser press. Every Murrayshall suite also welcomes you with Scottish mineral water and shortbread.
